Important Information About the Equifax Breach

As you may have heard, Equifax, one of the three major consumer credit reporting agencies, recently confirmed a breach of sensitive consumer information including, but not limited to, social security numbers, birthdates, addresses, and credit card numbers. We understand that you may be concerned; therefore, please review the following information carefully.

- This is NOT a breach of Sunshine Bank's systems. This occurred at Equifax and we cannot answer direct inquiries about the breach.
- Equifax will communicate directly with consumers whose personal and confidential information may have been compromised.
- Be diligent in taking steps to protect yourself, in the event that your information may be involved:
  - Monitor your existing credit card and bank account for charges that you do not recognize. Contact your financial institution if you find suspicious activity.
  - Check your detailed credit reports from Equifax, Experian, and TransUnion for unauthorized open accounts or activity.
  - Visit the FTC's Identity Theft website -- IdentityTheft.gov -- to complete a report and create a recovery plan.

Equifax has set up a dedicated call center, open 7 days per week, from 7:00am - 1:00am EST for you to speak directly with an Equifax representative about your information.
